

STEWART.

The Salt Lake Tribune thus speaks of our new Senator:

It will be seen that Senator Stewart is moving to have the Alien Land Act amended in a way to meet the wants of the miners in the Territories. Stewart is worth a host of do nothing Senators; and then, he is not only a worker but he has a practical head that makes every bit of his work count. Another beauty about him is his administrative ability. If he has twenty things on hand for the day when he gets up in the morning; he, over his coffee, arranges how to meet every one, and each one is met and disposed of. Again, he never forgets for a second time that, while Senator from Nevada in particular, he is a Senator of the United States, and that anybody has a right to make a claim upon him in the line of his duties. So he finds time to do all that is asked of him and what he undertakes is well done. Then, again, he fully appreciates his position and makes other men appreciate it, and so he never fails to command the respect of his colleagues. He is, all in all, a wonderfully equipped man.

A National University.

Senator Stewart has introduced a bill to establish a National University in Washington for the education of teachers. The bill creates a Cabinet Board of Regents to manage the university, appoint a faculty and fix their compensation. Tuition, rooms, board, books, stationary, etc., are to be furnished to the students free of charge. The course of education is fixed at four years. The President is empowered to appoint to the university fifty students. Each Senator and Representative and Territorial Delegate shall appoint one student, resident of his State or Territory each year.

Both females and males are to be admitted and the regents are directed to see that the membership is equally divided between the sexes. Students, while pursuing their studies in this ideal university and after graduating therefrom, while teaching common schools, or in State or Territorial institutions maintained for the purpose of instructing students in the art of teaching, shall, in addition to any other compensation they may receive, be paid $20 per month from the United States Treasury.

Our Own Ox.

On Blackberry fork of Pond creek, Pike county, Kentucky, a day or two ago, a party of the Hatfield family visited the ranch of the McCoy's, with whom they have been at war for about five years, set fire to the McCoy homestead and killed two women as they tried to escape, besides shooting at the other fleeing members of the family. The Hatfields had already in former engagements, killed the senior McCoy and three of his sons. The McCoy's of course had done what harm they could the Hatfields as occasion offered. If the Hatfields had been the Quong Chung family and the McCoy's the Lee Fong family, and the scene Chinatown, San Francisco, what an example such an affair would have been of the natural ferocity of the Mongolian character, what a striking instance of the futility of trying to imbue him with civilization and teach him respect for the laws of the United States! But, as the occasion was as it was, what sage moral are we to draw from it?

Probably Misquoted.

Superintendent Fillmore, of the Southern Pacific, is authority for the statement that thousands of cattle have perished in the sagebrush country since the storm set in; also for the silly statement: "Engineers report that they have been obliged to stop trains, get down, and shoot cattle, and drag them out of the way before the trains could proceed." Either Fillmore has been imposed upon or he has been misquoted by the San Francisco press.

The Rev. Dr. Hannon, in a sermon recently in San Francisco, said that "the Prince of Heaven would give a black eye to the power of darkness," and also a "champion belt studded with diamonds to the good." Preachers make asses of themselves when they bring prize ring slang into the pulpit. Hannon seems to have been unfortunate in the choice of his theological trainer.
